

INTRODUCTION

A Guide to Special Demonstration and Teacher Education Projects: Special Answers for Special Needs is a compilation of adult education and literacy resources funded under the Adult Education Act (P.L.100-297), as amended by the National Literacy Act of 1991 (P.L. 102-73). Under requirements of Section 353 of the Act, States were required to allot a minimum of 15% of their total grant funds to support teacher training and special demonstration projects. These projects fund a major part of local and state-wide training for adult education programs, and support an array of special experimental and demonstration activities designed to improve the effectiveness of program instruction and services.

Although States will continue to support teacher training and demonstration projects under provisions of Title II, Adult Education and Family Literacy Act of the new Workforce Investment Act of 1998, they will have greater discretion in allocating funds across an array of State Leadership Activities in addition to teacher training and demonstration projects. As in previous years, these projects will be designed to improve adult education programs and encourage innovations to better serve the educational needs of diverse adult learners.

States use different strategies and resources to support their program improvement goals. In recent years, increased focus on program accountability and professional development in adult education programs has heightened interest in the availability of new instructional resources. This Guide is intended to share information about program practices and assist States in designing strategies to meet the needs of specific groups such as adults with disabilities, limited English proficient individuals and older persons.

In order to provide an annual up-date to this Guide, we will rely on States to send in final reports or products from the new State Leadership Activities to the U.S. Department of Education. All reports and products are reviewed and evaluated by staff members in the Division of Adult Education and Literacy, assisted by other program offices as needed. Based on established criteria, innovative and potentially adaptable projects are selected to be included in the Guide. Updated versions of the guide will continue to provide information about the availability and use of projects.

We thank the State Directors and their staff for assisting in the preparation of this publication.

HOW TO ORDER PROJECT MATERIALS

Information about items listed in A Guide to Special Demonstration and Teacher Education Projects: Special Answers for Special Needs may be obtained from sources indicated after each project abstract.

Materials available from the Division of Adult Education and Literacy (DAEL) Clearinghouse are free of charge and can be accessed at <http://www.ed.gov/offices/OVAE/division.html>. There is a fee for documents ordered from the Educational Resources Information Center (ERIC). Some materials can be accessed at ERIC's website, <http://www.askeric.org/Eric/>.

ADULT EDUCATION PROGRAM MANAGEMENT

ABE CHILD CARE AND TRANSPORTATION SUPPORT SERVICES WORKBOOK

This workbook provides ABE program administrators a mechanism for developing an implementation plan to set up child care and transportation services for ABE students. Each chapter addresses a particular aspect of providing these services: surveying needs, identifying barriers, defining strategies, developing interagency coordination, and putting it all together in an appropriate, workable, community-based plan. At the end of each chapter, a worksheet is provided for completing suggested tasks. Readers are encouraged, at the conclusion of a chapter, to cut out the worksheet and use it to address needs, barriers, and strategies that reflect the local ABE program. This "learn-by-doing" approach should result in an implementation plan, unique to the local program, that addresses the provision of support services to ABE students.

ADULT DEVELOPMENT - WHAT DO TEACHERS OF ADULTS NEED TO KNOW?

This Florida Atlantic University publication outlines eight adult development models based on the theories of Maslow, Rogers, Kohlberg, Nelson, Erickson, Levinson, Loevinger, and Piaget. Stages of each model are clearly presented for use by adult education instructors.

MARKETING YOUR ADULT LITERACY PROGRAM MANUAL

The New York-You Can Read campaign was designed to enable adult educators to market their services better and to reach students who are not currently served. This "how to" manual has been used as part of a two-day workshop, but is also instructive for any adult educator planning a literacy campaign. It covers the basics of marketing, planning a marketing campaign, identifying resources, and evaluating the effort.

MOTIVATION

A manual was developed from this project to assist adult education and literacy programs in implementing and expanding services to the adult learner. Included in the manual are competency-based adult education learning guides for instructors to set up a motivational training course for ABE students. Seven topics of interest are included: values, goal setting, communication and listening, attitudes and job behavior, employability skills, stress management, and decision making. Pre- and post-tests are included in each learning guide. Suggested motivational films and videos are also included.

PROJECT MAPP MANAGEMENT MANUAL

The purpose of the Project MAPP (Maryland Adult Performance Program) Management Manual was to provide program personnel with a reference tool to assist in developing and implementing a process of competency-based adult education (CBAE) in adult basic education (ABE) programs. This manual not only addresses program components that are important to managers, but student related activities that are essential to both managers and instructors who provide CBAE. The first chapter Rationale presents adult learner characteristics and the reasons why a CBAE approach is preferable to a conventional adult education approach. The second chapter Program Components discusses essential concerns. Chapter three Student Activity Flow is centered on the management of student related activities from (PROJECT MAPP MANAGEMENT MANUAL, Continued) program intake, through instruction, to exit using a CBAE approach. The fourth chapter focuses on expectations fulfillment during the piloting phases, and chapter five Appendices provides additional resource information including a glossary, bibliography, the Project MAPP Implementation Plan, and a directory of Project MAPP personnel.

ADULTS WITH DISABILITIES

ABE/GED PROGRAMS FOR DISABLED ADULTS

The purpose of this project was to develop a handbook for literacy tutors and instructors who teach adults with disabilities. The handbook is a compilation of information about various handicapping conditions and suggestions for working with students who have disabilities, including those with hearing acuity problems, visual impairments, speech and language impairments, learning disabilities, orthopedic impairments, and epilepsy. The handbook also includes a directory of resources and a bibliography.

BRIDGING THE GAP

This project was designed to meet the unique literacy needs of developmentally disabled adults.

Bridging the Gap provided literacy training to developmentally disabled adults who were competitively employed through a locally supported employment program. Many of these individuals were not successful on the job because they lacked the necessary academic skills to perform their job responsibilities. The on-the-job teacher model is the core component of Bridging the Gap. It serves as the bridge between employees, employers, job coaches and adult basic education teachers by providing instruction at the job site in academic, social and/or independent living skills necessary for job success.

A manual is available that provides instructional goals, learning objectives and sample learning activities that were developed for use in classes targeted to support employees.

CHALLENGE AND CHANGE

The purpose of this project is to prepare a guide and manual to train adult education instructors on techniques and approaches to use when teaching deaf adults. The guide and manual cover a variety of topics, including the major differences in teaching deaf adults from other adults, how to develop language and communication skills, and the role of the interpreter in the classroom. A guide and manual entitled Adult Education: The Deaf Experience and the overheads to accompany both are included.

CHARACTERISTICS AND INSTRUCTIONAL STRATEGIES FOR ADULTS WITH LEARNING DISABILITIES

This project developed instructional videotapes combined with print materials that will familiarize viewers with the traits and behaviors typically found among adults with moderate to severe learning disabilities. It also focuses on methods for accommodating or compensating for the presence of learning disabilities among adults. The intent of the project is to help instructors in Adult Basic Education/G.E.D. programs to work more effectively with their adult students who possess moderate to severe learning disabilities. Two inch 30 minute color videotapes with printed materials are available to assist the instructors.

CLIENT MENTAL HEALTH ISSUES

The project addresses the growing need for ABE instructors to understand the special needs of clients suffering from mental health problems. An Adult Education and Job Training Center in Lewistown, Pennsylvania implemented four workshops which provided training on crisis situations, suicide threats and attempts, issues in mental health, and substance abuse and violence. A report derived from this implementation contains four training outlines reflecting the content of the four workshops and documents the entire project.

CURRICULUM DEVELOPMENT FOR THE DEAF ADULT BASIC EDUCATION LEARNERS

The Deafness Education Advocacy Foundation developed a comprehensive cultural curriculum on three subject areas: (1) Living with Loss, (2) Communication, and (3) Law and the Deaf. These topics were based on feedback from the deaf community, extensive networking within the deaf community and with professionals in the field of adult basic education. The curriculum was designed as a tool to expand the opportunities for deaf adults to increase their English literacy skills and simultaneously develop critical thinking skills based on real world information. This curriculum will be useful for adult educators and literacy providers and instructors of deaf adults.

DEAF ADULT LITERACY TUTOR HANDBOOK

This project, developed at the Pennsylvania School for the Deaf, produced a Tutor Training Handbook to meet the needs of tutors working with the deaf adult literacy students. The handbook has been used as part of a training program and focuses on the unique needs of the deaf adult. It contains teaching strategies and lists other materials helpful in working with the deaf adult learner.

The Deaf Literacy Handbook will be useful to individuals working with deaf adult literacy students, and is available to any individual or agency currently providing or requesting information about literacy services to deaf adults.

DEAF LITERACY PROGRAM

Brown University in Providence, Rhode Island developed this project. Its purpose was to address the educational needs of deaf and hearing impaired adult learners. Instruction focused on improving deaf adults' skills in communication and self-expression, gathering information, and accessing community and employment related resources. Program structure and design stemmed from the idea that sign language is an independent language of the deaf which carries an independent deaf culture. Classes were based on a model of bilingual education; the teachers were deaf-native speakers of American Sign Language, and all instruction was provided in sign language.

The results of this project are available in the form of a working paper which discusses the appropriate instructional strategies and materials which will be useful to teach deaf and hearing impaired adult learners.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS OF ALTERNATIVE TEACHING METHODS

This project was conducted at the Reading Area Community College in Reading, Pennsylvania. The project used alternate teaching methods in small-group teaching situations to enable learning disabled students to find practical success in reading, writing and math skills. It also helped learning disabled students to develop self-esteem and provided a positive learning environment where GED achievement became a realistic goal for those who felt it was not possible in the past.

The method and results of this project are described in the final report. This project will be useful for adult educators and literacy programs, or other groups in assisting their learning disabled students.

PROJECT UPGRADE: WORKING WITH ADULTS WITH LEARNING DISABILITIES

This project was designed to conduct a series of workshops for ABE/GED facilitator to prepare them to assist students with reading problems and learning disabilities. The project developed a resource manual which includes current literature on adults with learning disabilities, analysis of tests commonly used in ABE programs and other tests pertinent to adults with learning problems, resources and materials, behavioral characteristics of learning disabled adults, learning styles and theory, remediation techniques, and intervention theory.

TEACHING CEREBRAL PALSY ADULTS: A TUTOR TRAINING MANUAL

Tutors and instructors of adults are generally not trained to teach adults with cerebral palsy who have unique learning problems. This training manual, developed by Project LEARN staff in Denver, Colorado, will assist adult education instructors in teaching adults with cerebral palsy. It includes information on what cerebral palsy is and how to relate to persons with cerebral palsy, how to understand their unique needs, how to assess adults with cerebral palsy, and how to use an appropriate curriculum.

WHEN BONDS ARE BROKEN: FAMILY LITERACY FOR FATHER'S AND THEIR CHILDREN (YEAR II)

Northampton Community College and Northampton County Prison in Easton, Pennsylvania developed this program for fathers incarcerated at the prison to break the cycle of intergenerational illiteracy. Fathers received instruction in ABE/ESL/GED and parenting. While the fathers spent time with their children in bi-weekly visitation sessions, the children's primary caretaker received parenting instruction. Home visits by the family liaison worker, tutoring by volunteers, and classes for parolees were also part of the project. Three manuals describe the project, including the final report, a caretaker training manual, and a tutor training manual.

ABE/ESL ASSESSMENT PROJECT

The Northwest Regional Educational Laboratories, Portland, Oregon, as part of the process of developing an assessment system under contract for the Washington State Adult Basic Education/English as a Second Language programs, prepared three products: Annotated Bibliography, Results of Field Research, and Summary Report.

The Annotated Bibliography on ABE/ESL Assessment is divided into four sections and an appendix. The first section is a review of the materials found through the Educational Resources Information Center (ERIC) and Northwest Regional Educational Laboratories (NWREL) and received from professional organizations in the field. Sections two, three, and four are updated bibliographies on alternative assessments. In addition, an annotated ABE/ESL bibliography taken from the Information Update, Vol. 4, No. 4 published by the Literacy Assistance Center in New York is included in the appendix.

BRIDGES TO ACADEMIC WRITING

Oakton Community College in Des Plaines, Illinois developed a special composition course, Bridges to Academic Writing, to help high intermediate level adults of limited English proficiency make the transition from survival skills to college level ESL composition courses. The course is designed to instruct students on academic life and ease their adjustment to it. The authors recommend that the materials be used in conjunction with a grammar text. The composition exercises progress step by step from recognition to controlled writing to independent writing. Students are taught basic sentence patterns before moving into paragraphs. The course content includes four units: Simple and Compound Sentences, Basic Complex Sentences, Getting Ready to Write Paragraphs and Composing Paragraphs. Units 3 and 4 on Getting Ready to Write Paragraphs and Composing Paragraphs were field tested and revised as the result of the testing. Some of the topics included in the four units are: The First Day of Class, Rules and Expectations of Instruction, Classroom Conduct, Study Habits, and Student Services.

A COMPETENCY BASED PRE-VOCATIONAL ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE CURRICULUM GUIDE

The Catholic Charities in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania developed competency-based pre-vocational English as a Second Language curricula guides for adult students who need English speaking and listening skills to obtain and maintain employment. Two curricula guides were developed: beginning and intermediate levels. Each of the curricula guides focuses on units that relate to basic and life skills competencies, such as transportation, shopping, and starting a job. Each unit emphasizes grammar, job skills, and teacher resources. In addition to the annotated bibliography, a list of publishers is included in the guide.

COMPREHENSIVE ADULT STUDENT ASSESSMENT SYSTEM (CASAS)

The CASAS staff surveyed the local ABE and literacy programs in California that use the CASAS materials to determine the literacy needs of their students. From the responses received, the CASAS staff developed a series of performance-based student assessment tests in reading and math with life skills content. Both the reading and the math tests are available for ABE and ESL students at the beginning, intermediate and advanced levels.

THE CULTURAL LITERACY HANDBOOK

The handbook was produced by the South Hills Literacy Improvement Center, Bethel Park School District in Pennsylvania. It is designed to assist limited English proficient students with understanding and using American idioms. The 110 American idioms are grouped according to their most common uses: business, personal, or general situation. At the top of each page is a sentence using an idiom and an illustration of what the idiom seems to mean. At the bottom of the page is an illustration of what the idiom really means, and a sentence for the student to complete using the idiom.

Based on the results of field tests, it was determined that the limited English proficient students who would most benefit from the use of this book are those who have higher than a very basic knowledge of English because they need to be able to understand the explanations of the idioms. Suggestions on how to use this handbook are provided in the text.

tests. The major goal of the project was to determine reading levels for non-native speakers of English for purposes of reporting progress to employers and funding agencies.

The College of Lake County, Elgin Community College, Oakton MONNACE, and the ESL Program of Township High School District 214, along with William Rainey Harper College, were the sites where combinations of four tests were administered to adult students. The four tests used for the study were: Tests of English Proficiency Level (TEPL)-ESL, English Language Skills Assessment (ELSA)-ESL, Test of Adult Basic Education (TABE)-ABE-GED, and the Adult Basic Learning Examination (ABLE)-ABE-GED. The project established a framework for additional research in the assessment of

ESL, SMALL TOWN

This curriculum is designed to integrate traditional and whole language instruction approaches while seeking to meet the needs of adult students in a non-metropolitan area. Each unit is independent and affords a variety of pronunciation, listening, speaking, reading and writing experiences. The thrust of the curriculum is to move the participant beyond mere survival to self-sufficiency and further integration into the community. Although the curriculum was geared toward meeting the needs of a target student population in a multi-level setting, the materials can be modified for other participants and settings.

AN INVESTIGATION OF ESL STUDENT RETENTION AND ACHIEVEMENT

This project was developed by Seattle Central Community College (SCCC) to answer critical questions on the achievement and retention of ESL students. The project covered enrollment data from 1989 to 1994. Four research questions were asked: In how many quarters was the average ESL student enrolled? How long on average does it take for ESL students to move from each of the Core Competency levels (how many quarters enrolled at each level)? How many ESL students transition from free ESL classes into college preparation ESL, vocational classes, or college level academic classes? What impact do the differences in learners' age, gender, educational goals and educational background have upon the pace of learning? The report includes the methodology and results of the study in narrative and graphic forms. One project result indicated that it takes students in the SCC ESL program about one and a half quarters to move from one core competencies sub-level to the next. Students attended on the average of 400 to 500 hours to complete a whole core competencies level.

instructors and their learners and, in most cases, the software was used on the local program level with learners for several weeks. Each section features a different aspect of using technology with the adult learners. The technologies used include computer software, audio tapes, video tapes, on-line systems, and hand-held technologies such as the Language Master and Q-Solutions. The technologies in the Featured Technology Section received good to excellent ratings from instructors and learners.

REFUGEE WOMEN'S ALLIANCE FAMILY STORY CURRICULUM GUIDE

The Refugee Women's Alliance Family Story Guide was developed in Seattle, Washington with the mission of helping refugee women achieve self-sufficiency in America. The Family Story curriculum was developed to use in three ESL classes: Pre-Literate, Even Start, and Family Talk. The curriculum materials were designed to increase self-esteem, cultural adjustment, and language skills of the participants. In addition, the materials helped to bridge the cultural and generational gap between newcomers and their American-raised children.

The guide is divided into various sections: Training, Oral History and Journal Writing, Pre-collection Activities, Collecting Stories, Follow-up ESL Activities and Conclusion. The guide can be used as a valuable staff development tool.

A RESOURCE MANUAL FOR THE ASSESSMENT OF COMPETENCIES OF THE BASIC STUDIES ESL CURRICULUM

This manual was developed by Seattle Central Community College in Seattle Washington. The manual was designed for use by ESL teachers in assessing the proficiencies of limited English proficient students in the skill areas associated with the Washington State ESL Core Competencies. The manual is organized into five sections according to the skill areas of reading, writing, speaking, listening, and computation. Each section includes a list of core competencies, a list of assessment strategies and tools, and a set of sample assessment forms. The manual illustrates that there are many ways to assess ESL learners progress and shows ways to track learner outcomes.

ROCK VALLEY COLLEGE PRIVATE SECTOR PARTNERSHIPS FOR ENGLISH LITERACY

Rock Valley College in cooperation with Rockford Area Literacy Council and the English Language Study Center at Rockford College in Illinois administered the Private Sector Partnerships for English Literacy project. The goal of the project was to recruit, provide tutoring, and offer classes for English as a Second Language literacy students at their place of employment. The project partners negotiated with management in fourteen companies, tested the workforce in two of the companies and provided classes for 106 ESL students in seven companies. All tuition, classroom space, textbooks, and, in some cases, work release time were funded by the private sector for 86 of the students. Strengths and problems observed in implementing this project are cited. A major strength of the project is the high participation level of limited English proficient workers. Objectives, activities, observations, assessment of workplace programs, and students comments are included in the report.

This is formerly the Adult Teacher Training Adventures project at Truckee Meadows Community College in Reno, Nevada. Three teacher training packets were designed to be used independently by adult basic education instructors for self-paced instruction. The packets provide instructors a grounding in Teaching a Multilevel ESL Class, Monitoring Student Progress, and Lesson Planning for Effective and Efficient Instruction. Each packet is to be used independently by instructors to gain a background in these areas and can be completed in approximately ten to fourteen hours. Audio tapes are included for each packet. The packets can be easily adaptable for use for presentations. All three self-instructional packets are available for use by funded ABE/ESL programs free in Nevada from the State Literacy Resource Center.

STAFF DEVELOPMENT GUIDES ON ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE

Training guides and video cassettes were developed by staff members at San Francisco State University to provide background information and guidelines for incorporating the key elements of competency based adult education (CBAE) processes into the beginning and intermediate levels of English as a Second Language (ESL) classrooms. Both guides include information on: modes of instruction, video demonstration, lesson planning and time management, assessment and evaluation, and classroom support services. The emphasis of the video cassettes that accompany each guide is on effective teaching techniques and strategies for organizing instruction

STUDY GUIDE TO PREPARE FOR WRITTEN CITIZENSHIP EXAMINATION: A GUIDE FOR BEGINNING LEVEL ESL STUDENTS

The Catholic Charities, Diocese of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania developed this guide. It was designed to help students prepare to take the written citizenship examination that is offered by the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) and administered by the Educational Testing Service (ETS). The guide can be used in a classroom setting or for individual self-study.

In addition to covering facts on U.S. history and government, this study guide familiarizes the student with the examination format and style. Sample tests and answer sheets are included. Students who took the citizenship exam after using the study guide felt that the guide covered all the information they needed to know.

TEACHING STRATEGIES FOR ESOL VOLUNTEERS

Teaching Strategies for ESOL Volunteers, developed by the IHM Literacy Center in Philadelphia, was designed to offer ESOL courses through technology to multicultural-multiethnic volunteer faculty teachers. The final report provides information on multiculturalism, and annotated bibliographies on Asians, Hispanics, and the Portuguese populations. Information on African Slavery and African Roots are also presented. The appendices include information on empowering minority students and on multicultural training recommendations. In addition, the final report covers information on the teaching and learning of listening, reading, and speaking skills through hands-on-use of the Autoskill Subskills, using Unisys computers.

TELL ME ABOUT IT

La Salle University in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania developed a multi-cultural manual designed to give low income minority adult learners from diverse cultures an opportunity to build vocabulary, and to encourage written and oral communication in English. The reading and language activities are intended to be used in a group setting. The manual was field tested by both ABE and ESL students. Topics included in this manual not only give students the opportunity to speak and write about their own cultural experiences, but also give them the opportunity to increase their understanding of other cultures. National backgrounds of the students displayed in the readings range from Jamaican to Cambodian to Angolan to African American. "Tell Me About It" can broaden an adult learner's perspective of other cultures.

WE'RE ALL IN THE SAME BOAT

The Urban Studies and Community Services Center of LaSalle University in Philadelphia developed a curriculum, We're All in the Same Boat. This is a multi-cultural and pre-vocational ESL curriculum designed for intermediate and advanced level ESL students. The field testing for intermediate and advanced level ESL students was done in a La Salle Urban Center ESL class, the Camden Learning Center, the refugee ESL classes in Camden, and in Project LEIF (Learning English Through Intergenerational Friendship).

The curriculum is divided into six units that give information about crime, poverty, and prejudice. Also, information on slavery and the Civil Rights movement, Hispanics in America (particularly Puerto Ricans) the history of immigration, the tensions between racial and ethnic groups, cultural and racial sensitivity, and safety and union issues are discussed. Many language activities (listening, speaking, writing, reading, grammar, idioms and vocabulary development) are presented in each chapter. Scenarios are offered in units 2 and 6. Illustrations in the manual will enhance a student's understanding of the subject matter taught as well as provide him or her with opportunities to use discussion and writing skills.

TEAMWORK WEST TENNESSEE

The Corporate Learning Institute of Vanderbilt University undertook an objective evaluation of the PLATO Integrated Adult Learning Systems in five west Tennessee counties, where 19 adult basic education learning centers used the PLATO system. The purpose of this evaluation was to collect a range of qualitative data that would accurately reflect the attitudes and feelings of PLATO learners and instructors within the five counties. Data were collected through questionnaires, informal interviews and extant records. Questions were presented in a semi-structured, open-ended format, so that participants would feel free to elaborate as much as possible on their responses. The evaluation report presents the results of these data collection efforts.

A MODEL FOR RURAL SCHOOLS TO INVOLVE PARENTS IN THE EDUCATION OF THEIR CHILDREN

This manual was developed by the Center for Community Education at Montana State University in cooperation with the Conrad Public Schools in Conrad Montana. Its goal was to involve parents residing in rural areas in the education of their children. Information in the manual gives a step by step process to develop the model. The model includes topics such as: what parents can do, what teachers can do, what principals can do, and how to get started. Additional resources include forms and tips for parent/teacher conferences, homework, home visits, ways volunteers can help as well as a listing of national organizations with related activities.

PARENTING RESOURCE BOOK

This resource book was developed by the Center for Literacy in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. It was designed for use in family and other adult basic and literacy education (ABLE) programs. The Resource Book is divided into two parts. Part One consists of eleven chapters on subjects of interest to parents, including child development, discipline, health, pregnancy, safety, and values. Part Two is a list of reference materials for parents who choose to explore topics in depth. Although a few of the articles in the resource book discuss topics relevant to Philadelphia, the book can easily be adapted for use in other localities.

PARENTING SKILLS THROUGH CHILDREN'S LITERATURE

This parenting skills curriculum guide was developed at the Goodwill Industries of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania in Collaboration with the Community College of Allegheny County. The curriculum was developed for teen parents. The guide uses the medium of children's literature to teach parenting skills. The lessons in the guide are planned for 16 one hour classes. The publication contains goals, objectives, activities, and recommended homework assignments. A bibliography, which offers alternative children's book selection is also available.

PARENTS AND CHILDREN TOGETHER (PACT)

This project was designed in Tallahassee, Florida. Its purpose is to provide identified literacy training and increased parent-child interactions through shared learning activities. Developmental areas targeted are sensor/perception, cognition, affect/motivation, and psychomotor. The project includes parent-child learning activities, annotated bibliography, and suggested resources for additional learning activities.

PARENTS AS TEACHERS PROJECT

Baltimore County Public Schools, Baltimore, Maryland designed and field tested training modules to help parents develop techniques to effectively read to their children, choose age appropriate books, go on field trips, choose toys, help with homework, and make and play games with their children. Parent/child interaction activities are designed to reinforce these targeted skills. One hundred thirty-one families attended family workshops and family nights. Parents from ABE classes and AFDC programs, and grandparents came with their granddaughters and low literacy level daughters, while 88 families came from shelters. Through this high retention rate project, modeling was the best teaching technique for the parents because many had no experience in the various activities. Several booklets: Learning Style, Craft Idea, Self-Esteem, and How to Encourage your Children to Read were developed.

PROJECT PACT: PARENTS AND CHILDREN TOGETHER

Project PACT resulted in the development of a curriculum for 0-4 level ABE students at the Centre County Vocational-Technical School in Pleasant Gap, Pennsylvania. PACT materials are intended for use by ABE students who are parents or others who interact with children. The curriculum consists of lessons in life coping skills and parenting skills. The lessons are constructed to be used first by ABE teachers or counselors with the parent and then by parent and child at home. The lessons introduce concepts that a child can learn "naturally" and easily from a parent. In most cases the parents may be learning or reviewing the concept themselves.

REACH AND TEACH: AN EARLY INTERVENTION FAMILY LITERACY MODEL FOR AGENCIES SERVING "AT-RISK" CLIENTS

This project was developed by Pinellas County Schools' Adult and Community Education Department in Clearwater, Florida. The project is designed to improve the parenting and basic skills of educationally at-risk clients in agencies and in the community. Parent/child involvement activities promote physical, social, intellectual development and language growth for young children from birth to five year old. Specific skills for parents focus on reading, writing, computing and problem solving. A facilitator and a parent guide which includes a sample sign-in sheet, evaluation and in-home session forms, a list of children's books and activities for each child's developmental stage are included as well.

READING TOGETHER

This project, developed at Temple University, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania addresses the challenge of creating a collaborative approach to parental involvement in teaching children and inspiring them in academic achievement. As part of a family literacy program, participants in the study were 19 African-American adolescent parents from low income backgrounds whose children attended an early intervention program. Parents' beliefs about learning and literacy were sought through a series of peer group discussions. The data revealed a continuum of perspectives, indicating that there may be important intragroup variability within a given sociocultural group. The discussions, however, also revealed shared goals that may be used to forge a collaborative relationship between parents and professionals to improve minority children's early education. Illustrations from a family literacy program are used to show how parent beliefs may be incorporated into programmatic changes, building constructive relationships that work toward supporting children's success in schooling.

READING TOGETHER AND TOGETHER WE LEARN: A PARENT INVOLVEMENT PROGRAM

The School Board of Pinellas County in Clearwater, Florida, developed workshop manuals to use to involve families in learning activities. The manuals, Reading Together and Together We Learn, were designed for school administrators, leaders, principals, ABE and early childhood practitioners to help raise the basic education levels of parents and their children. The manuals are divided into eight workshop sessions which include activities for Middle Schools. A myriad of activities (reading aloud, storytelling, puppetry, speaking, book lists, and language development) are included. Most of the activities can be adapted up or down as needed. A family literacy program in coordination with three ABE classes, Head Start families and 27 Chapter I schools were implemented in which the manuals were field tested. The response was overwhelmingly. More than 950 parents and children enrolled in the program and were served by the project.

(*)ADULT EDUCATION ALTERNATIVE DIPLOMA

The purpose of this project was to develop an alternative mechanism to the GED whereas adult students could achieve an actual High School Diploma. A competency diploma program was developed and implemented in conjunction with a regional alternative high school. In addition to the competency diploma, arrangements were negotiated with the high school in which adult students could complete an alternative academic curriculum and receive a high school diploma. Cooperation with existing public school entities is a viable mechanism to offer adult students new options to obtain a real high school diploma. Models can be developed which are consistent with the experimental backgrounds and schedules of adult students. There is general interest by school districts in the provision of a competency diploma option for local residents.

COLLEGE AND TECHNICAL HANDBOOK

The Fayette County Community Action Agency, Inc. of Uniontown, Pennsylvania developed a handbook on employment and higher education opportunities in the local area. The handbook is a compilation of local vocational and technical colleges, business schools, their curriculums, degrees offered and entrance information. The handbook lists comprehensive Federal and State financial aid and private grants information. It also provides information and practice worksheets in job search strategy, correspondence for the job search, cover letters, a resume worksheet, and skills for workplace communication.

The College and Technical Handbook offers information that GED Students will need in furthering their education and employment futures. The handbook will be beneficial to public school systems, adult education programs and community-based organizations.

The Gateway Center for Excellence is a multi-dimensional program, in Florida, designed to enhance self-esteem, academic success, and retention by addressing the academic, social, and psychological factors relevant to adult basic education and GED preparation. Its primary mission is to provide students with a safe non-threatening experience for remediation. Staff will set high expectations, value life experiences, actively address student needs and concerns, be accessible, encourage extracurricular activities, and exert time and effort in groups. Learning communities along with support groups will be fostered. The program design will build in ongoing reinforcement and practice of skills. Curricular goals will also be defined to extend to and link with out-of-class experiences. Student progress will be assessed on a regular basis and feedback given promptly. Finally, staff will take every opportunity to increase informal contact among college faculty and students.

GED AFTER JAIL

This project was developed in Clearfield, Pennsylvania. It addresses the problem of undereducated, unemployed or underemployed former prisoners of the Clearfield County Prison who remain in the county upon release. The project provides individual counseling for prisoners prior to being released from jail, and immediately following their release to help them continue to study for and obtain their GED.

A curriculum packet consisting of: an application and class brochure, a survey of personal life goals, job readiness materials, and evaluation was developed from the project. This informational packet will be of particular interest to GED instructors in county prisons, GED program coordinators, and prison officials looking for alternatives to prison recidivism.

Get GED

This project, Get GED, was developed at the Jefferson County Public Schools in Louisville, Kentucky. It resulted in the creation of two videos and a manual. The first video's primary focus is a review of the major aspects of the GED test and is approximately twenty minutes in length. All sections of the actual test were reviewed along with potential types of questions and test taking strategies. Tips for relieving test anxiety, relaxation and organization from successful GED graduates is also included as a part of the information. The second video focuses upon the familiarity of the testing center. Test takers will become completely familiar with all surroundings, which will include the actual center where they will take the test, the door to enter, the room, and the seating arrangements. Each local center will be able to video their particular surrounding and add their recording to the video so the participant will be center specific information.

(*)PHILADELPHIA ALTERNATIVE DIPLOMA PROJECT

This project was designed for adults seeking alternatives to, or an enhancement of, the General Educational Development (GED) program. The goal was to develop and implement a program that would actually have a pilot group that would run the second half of the fiscal year. Of the 25 students selected to participate, 20 would be eligible for diplomas. An alternative diploma was designed with three components: life skills, computer literacy, and academic competencies. Philadelphia's program was modeled after the Cumberland Valley School District's program with its academic core and categories of life skills. The key differences between the two programs was that the Philadelphia model contained at least 20 hours of hands-on computer instruction and was developed through a collaboration between a non-profit provider of adult literacy services and a school district.

PROJECT RE-ENTRY (A Re-Enrollment Project for GED Students)

This project was conducted by the Tri-County Opportunities Industrialization Center (OIC) in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. Its purpose was to identify the status of Tri-County OIC students who have been labeled non-completers. A non-completer was defined as any student who has taken at least one of the official GED tests, but has not completed the entire test battery, or has completed the test battery but still lacks enough points to be awarded a GED equivalency diploma. In addition, a non-completer is not currently enrolled in a GED class.

This Utah-based project was designed to bring together a collection of existing resources for adults that provide a variety of educational and skills training activities including high school completion, work skill education, technical training and job placement. The project operated under the oversight of an Advisory Committee that developed the overall state model. A second Committee made up of practitioners implemented the model and delivered the identified services to students.

The results of the project indicate that the school-to-careers concept can be modified to accommodate adult students. In the State of Utah many of the elements are currently being delivered to the adult education student. Challenges occur when students are working with several agencies; and, coordination among adult education, applied technology education, Work Force Service and other providers must be accomplished at the State level. Roles, responsibilities and pathways are still needed to effectively provide comprehensive, unduplicated services to adult education students.

TEST TAKING STRATEGIES FOR THE GED CANDIDATE

These monthly seminars were offered by the Erie City School District in Erie, Pennsylvania, in conjunction with the Erie Adult Learning Center, to all people who were preparing to take the GED Test. The seminars explored the areas of: Test taking strategies, the skills necessary to be successful in passing the 5 subject areas included on the GED Test; and the mental and emotional factors involved in the test taking process. Videotapes, hand-outs and group discussion were the methods used by the counselors. Each participant was given a written evaluation of the seminar.

The report of this project contains a curriculum designed to teach test taking skills and strategies to students taking the GED test. The approaches used in this seminar will be useful to other adult educators administering the GED Test.

YEARBOOK: WRITING, RECRUITMENT, RECOGNITION

The Tuscarora Intermediate Unit (TIU) Adult Education and Job Training Center, developed a yearbook that featured 20-30 graduating GED students to be used as a vehicle for ABE recruitment. It can also be used to provide an important link between old and new alumni. The yearbook includes a student writing section to highlight the students' educational experience which can be used as a prototype by other adult educators. The yearbook was designed to provide graduating GED students with a special way to show recognition and praise for their educational accomplishments.

LIFE SKILLS

EVERYDAY BASIC SKILLS

Everyday Basic Skills was developed by the Tuscarora Intermediate Unit, Adult Education and Job Training Center in Lewistown, Pennsylvania. It is a comprehensive life skills curriculum for literacy and ABE level individuals with an emphasis on the basic skills needed to meet everyday survival issues. The curriculum consists of seven complete and free standing modules that permit flexibility of delivery by classroom instruction, small group instruction and independent study. Reading levels are at the 4th to 8th grade level and allows for the incorporation of existing materials available in the classroom. The seven modules are: basic skills, everyday math, everyday english, social skills, reasoning skills, employability skills, and life and parenting skills.

The Lutheran Settlement House Women's Program in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania developed this multicultural curriculum manual. It was designed to help students develop an understanding of how our bodies use food for growth, development, and how to determine and select nutritious foods to eat to maintain a healthy body. The manual has four chapters and covers topics such as the digestive process; nutrients, fat, sugar, salt and cholesterol; economical shopping and nutritional tips; multicultural food; and guidelines for good nutrition. Students recipes are also included in the manual. The materials in the manual were developed and field tested in five classes and evaluated qualitatively and quantitatively through a student pre- and post test, a student survey, and a teacher survey.

LITERACY

COLLABORATIVE LEARNING: AN ALTERNATIVE APPROACH TO ADULT LITERACY INSTRUCTION

This manual, developed in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania discusses ways to incorporate collaborative learning groups into adult education classes. Collaborative learning fosters a more egalitarian relationship between the teacher/facilitator and group learners and encourages greater democracy and participation of group members. Although collaborative learning has been used successfully in other areas of education, it has not been common in adult education. The manual provides answers to the questions adult educators may have who are considering collaborative learning for their classes.

The manual contains sample lessons that use students' life experiences to help them understand geographical concepts. Lessons focus on local, national, and world geography and use activity-based, group learning. Although some local geography lessons feature Philadelphia landmarks and neighborhoods, lessons can easily be adapted for other localities. The appendix contains a resource list and maps.

LITERACY DRAMA: USING PLAYS IN ADULT LITERACY EDUCATION

This literacy drama was developed by Portland Community College in Portland, Oregon. It is a collection of five plays which can be used with low level and special needs classes. The plays are written at a low level and provide students the opportunity to raise questions, analyze and discuss issues, and examine cultural beliefs. Each play contains ideas and suggestions for use. The book also contains chapters on production, ideas for using drama in the classroom, and additional readings.

MATHEMATICS FOR THE 90'S: TOWARD A NEW PERSPECTIVE

This project was developed by the Mt. Hood Community College in Gresham, Oregon. Its major objective was to design a curriculum for ABE math which emphasizes critical-thinking, problem solving, use of technology, and writing rather than drill and practice. The product provides practical exercises\activities using written and oral language, technology and life-skills. It also serves as a basis for training staff to alter attitudes about math, broaden the curricula and more effectively bridge math in the classroom with math in the workplace.

PERSONAL MANAGEMENT: AN INTEGRATED CURRICULUM

Staff at the Adult Basic Education and Literacy Educators Network of Washington produced this project. It is one part of a larger curriculum that provides activities for interpersonal, thinking, and communications skills for adult learners. This integrated curriculum addresses different learning and teaching styles by offering five ways to present a lesson on personal management: Reflective, Interactive, Problem Posing, Talking, and Content Based. It centers on self-esteem, goal setting, creating and maintaining personal motivation, and pursuing personal and career development. Learning objectives and worksheets are also provided for activities in the handbook.

PROJECT P.R.O.U.D (People Reading Their Own Unique Dictation)

This Pennsylvania project was designed to focus on the problems associated with book-centered, one-to-one tutoring to help adults learn to read. The problems that the project sought to eliminate were uninteresting, non pertinent materials; focus on single skills rather than reading as communication; lack of learner-centered, self-worth attitudes; and feelings of being a one-of-a-kind non reader. The project staff trained tutors in the language experience approach and designed appropriate accompanying exercises. The tutors then had students dictate stories concerning their experiences, knowledge, and concerns. Students then worked through these stories and exercises. Tutors submitted the stories and exercises to Mid-State Literacy Council for grouping according to reading level, editing, and publication in a set of six books. The six books that contain students' language experience stories with accompanying skill exercises and comprehension questions were developed for adult students at the 0-4 reading level, including non-English speaking adults.

WIDENING HORIZONS: A GUIDE TO ORGANIZING FIELD TRIPS FOR ADULT STUDENTS

The Women's Program of Lutheran Settlement House in Pennsylvania developed and field tested a guide on organizing field trips for adult learners. This step by step guide is based on the premise that field trips are important links between the classroom and the real world, and they provide a forum for development of higher level thinking skills based on concrete, actual events and activities. Information in the guide includes topics such as ideas for trips related to subject matter, sample rules, overcoming barriers to participation, before and after sample educational activities, and a sample letter to potential agencies.

()YOU WORK HARD FOR YOUR MONEY

Nashville READ, in Tennessee, developed this project. It was produced in an effort to influence the education of adults with sixth grade and below reading skills about consumer rights and responsibilities. Also, how to seek help through the use of existing and new literacy programs across Tennessee. The packet consists of a video, teaching manual with hand-outs and transparencies, and a list of resources for consumer assistance that are designed to inform undereducated consumers about their rights. You Work Hard for Your Money consumer rights and responsibilities materials are designed for Adult Basic Education I (ABE I) and English as a second language students. The materials are also appropriate for ABE II and III classes, and can be tailored by instructors to meet the learning needs of their students. Each of the twenty-seven lessons includes a list of materials needed, the basic skills that will be taught, a list of vocabulary words, a list of objectives, and an outline of the activities that can be conducted. Nashville READ also produced a brochure entitled Serving the Undereducated Customer, which is designed to help businesses and industry be more sensitive and responsive to the needs of customers who may not read or write well.

OLDER PERSONS

DEVELOPING SUCCESSFUL ADULT BASIC EDUCATION PROGRAMS FOR OLDER ADULTS

This guide was developed by Randolph Community College in Asheboro, North Carolina to assist adult educators in planning and implementing successful ABE programs for undereducated adults 55 years of age and over. The first five sections deal with the psychosocial aspects of aging, followed by three sections on the basic education needs and interests of older adults. A basic skills interest indicator resource guide, a curriculum materials resource guide and references of related services are included in the last sections of this guide. The guide for curriculum materials includes topics of interest to older adults as handwriting, legal services, banking, newspaper, health and insurance. The reading levels of the suggested materials range from 0-8 grade.

LEADERS OF READERS: A CO-LEARNING PROCESS

This project, conducted by the Florida Council on Aging, developed a process model to train literacy volunteers to work with older persons. It is a systematic model, sequentially staged to engage tutors in the inservice process over a sustained period of time. Although primarily designed for tutors, the model is also applicable to learners, to assist them in becoming responsible for their own learning. Two resource documents were also compiled from this project.

STAFF DEVELOPMENT

ADULT LITERACY LEADERSHIP TRAINING PROJECT REPORT

Phase II of Florida's Adult Literacy Leadership Training Project involved a study of education and training activities for adult literacy providers. The purpose was to provide a framework for upgrading the education and skills of literacy professionals. This study resulted in a report in two volumes. Volume I, Toward the Development of a Comprehensive Education and Training Model for Florida's Adult Literacy Leadership, presents background for staff development and training activities and general guidelines for a program evaluation design. Volume II, Fundamental Considerations in the Conceptualization and Design of Adult Literacy Staff Development and Training, explains the study methodology, the research findings and conclusions, and the recommended framework for training adult literacy professionals.

ASSESSING THE NEED, ACCEPTABILITY, AND AVAILABLE RESOURCES FOR ADULT LITERACY STAFF DEVELOPMENT THROUGH DISTANCE EDUCATION IN RURAL PENNSYLVANIA AND RECOMMENDED MODELS TO MEET THE NEEDS

This academic study assesses the need of distance education in rural areas, such as those in Pennsylvania, and provides recommendations for acquiring the technology needed. A description of distance learning is examined, and then recommended as a means to overcome difficulties with staff training in rural areas. Many Adult Educators are volunteers, and the travel time and expense is a cumbersome obstacle when providing training workshops. An appendix discusses the different aspects of distance learning, giving examples from other communities. Programs interested in developing and implementing distance learning in rural locations may find this study useful.

OPEN UP A LIFE, Region 4 Staff Development

The final report of the Staff Development Activities for Region 4 in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania discusses the use of mini-grants offered to educators. The mini-grants encourage creativity and innovation in the classroom by promoting more effective instruction. This project encourages teachers to perform independent and practical research, to implement innovative teaching methods, and to produce creative new materials for the classroom. Support staff may also apply for mini-grants, to explore new intake procedures or teaching methods. In addition, the report discusses the types of workshops held, based on survey results from a staff development needs assessment. An evaluation of the project was completed, with recommendations to adjust the needs assessment to produce more effective workshops based on specialized needs. Other adult literacy programs may find the evaluation recommendations, the needs assessment survey, and the information on the mini-grants helpful for their programs.

STAFF ORIENTATION MANUAL FOR ADULT BASIC AND LITERACY EDUCATION PROVIDERS

This manual, developed by the Center For Literacy (CFL) in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania provides a comprehensive guide for teachers, coordinators, or other practitioners who provide services to Adult Basic and Literacy Education (ABLE) students. Sections of the manual include: orientation, coordination information, management procedures, curriculum guides, and student assessment and record keeping forms. Areas of interest include: reading, writing, math, computer-assisted learning, how adults learn, developing lesson plans and evaluating progress. The manual is easy to read and includes suggestions on assessment and teaching, as well as giving examples and answering questions for situations that may arise in a classroom setting. Excellent ideas are shared, and innovation and flexibility are encouraged. Teaching tips include topics on: building trust, setting good examples, student-educator initial contact, and controlling the classroom. Indicators of program quality are outlined to provide guidelines; an orientation needs assessment form and a bibliography are also included. Although the materials were prepared for the CFL system, they may easily be adapted for other locations.

TEACHER EDUCATION

ADULT BASIC SKILLS INSTRUCTOR TRAINING MANUAL

This trainer's manual resulted from a three-year project to develop a cadre of adult basic skills instructor trainers who could meet the training and staff development needs of local service providers. The project was housed at Appalachian State University. Seventy-one instructor competencies in four curriculum areas were developed: communications with adult learners, assessing and diagnosing learners' strengths and weaknesses, selecting appropriate methodologies and materials, and evaluation. Approaches for English as a Second Language are included in a separate section on methods in language arts. The manual provides suggestions on principles and teaching methods under various subject headings and contains sections on related instructional and reading materials. Materials in the handbook have been used in regional workshops and summer training institutes at Appalachian State University.

This Functional Skills Based ABE Curriculum Report was designed to update Florida's statewide curriculum framework for adult education courses. In addition, student performance standards for adult basic education courses were developed. The curriculum framework includes four sections: major concepts/content, laboratory activities, special notes, and intended outcomes. Student performance standards are listed for each intended outcome.

AN ABE INSTRUCTIONAL AND TRAINING VIDEO USER'S CATALOG

Project Advance established a video tape library for use in adult education student instruction and teacher training. It contains approximately 75 titles in a broad range of subject areas including: ABE assessment, ESL teacher training, diagnostic teaching of mathematics, consumer protection, teaching critical thinking, adults with learning disabilities, and principals of technology. The catalog introduces the collection and gives brief descriptions of the video tapes that are available for borrowing.

ARIZONA ADULT EDUCATION MANUAL

This manual was designed for adult education teachers in Arizona. It contains practical information about adult education and literacy programs in the State, including sections on GED preparation and ESL. It provides tips on assessment, curriculum development, classroom objectives, teaching methods, and evaluation as general information. The sections on record keeping, textbooks, computers and citizenship/amnesty provide important references for teachers in the program. Overall, the manual is a useful source of information for new and experienced teachers alike. Although the demographics and particular administrative procedures refer to Arizona, the organization and general contents on teaching tips make it useful for other geographical areas.

IDEAS THAT WORK FOR ABE, VOLUME 2

This collection of innovative teaching ideas was prepared by the Oregon ABE Committee under a project conducted by Chemeketa Community College. The ideas and resources here are intended to improve student success and to make learning more fun. The sections contain icebreakers and other team building activities that support the integration of academic skills with applications in such contexts as consumer economics, community resources, health employment, government, and law. Most of the sections are organized according to the CASAS Life Skills competencies. This is a continuation of the project effort in Ideas that Work for ABE, Volume I, published in 1991.

This project of the Montgomery County Public Schools is a continuation of the development and implementation of Maryland's statewide competency based program, Project MAPP. Earlier projects focused on the assessment, instruction and management/guidance components. As a result of a statewide evaluation of the Instructional program, some refinements and revisions were made in the materials. This latest project effort incorporated necessary changes based on the evaluation and produced teacher references and training materials:

MORE THAN THE SUM OF THE PARTS: USING SMALL GROUP LEARNING IN ADULT BASIC EDUCATION

The staff at the Center on Education and Training for Employment, College of Education, Ohio State University developed this publication. This 83-page document was designed to help teachers and administrators initiate the small group learning approach into the field of adult education and literacy. The seven chapters in the publication include information on the advantages and disadvantages of small group learning; tips for managing small group learning; preparing lesson plans; staff development; and activities that can be used to develop the literacy and numeracy skills of adult learners. Also, Appendices A and B include additional resources and an ERIC Digest on "Managing Your Professional Development: A Guide for Part-time Teachers of Adults."

TEACHING WRITING

BASIC WRITING SKILLS - A SEQUENTIAL OBJECTIVE BASED PROGRAM FOR USE IN ABE AND GED PREP CLASSES

A sequence of ten units or learning packets, each with its own specific measurable learning objective, was developed at the Highline Community College in Des Moines, Washington. It was designed to help students master the language arts skills essential for the writing skills portion of the GED examination. Each of the ten units consists of four parts: a pre-test, an explanation of the concept, student exercises, and a post-test. The format used is especially suitable for students who are working independently at their own pace. However, instructor assistance is recommended to help students understand their mistakes and apply the rules presented.

CRITICAL THINKING THROUGH THE WRITING PROCESS

This curriculum guide, developed in Spokane, Washington, assists instructors and students with improving student scores on the GED Writing Skills Test. The curriculum uses a critical thinking approach to teaching writing skills. Students are introduced to grammar after they have learned critical thinking skills, practiced some writing, and developed confidence in their writing abilities. The guide includes activities, lesson plans, suggestions for writing topics, and practice exercises.

INTRODUCING WRITING TO GED/ABE STUDENTS

The purpose of this professional development package, developed at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque is to assist GED instructors in developing teaching skills which will help them prepare students for the written essay part of the GED exam. Research and educators experiences indicate that the thinking/writing required are most efficiently and effectively communicated through collaborative learning situations where dialogue or discussion expose individuals to different ways of looking at topics. The accompanying video provides an opportunity to observe other GED instructors and tutors working with this process.

LEARNING ABOUT PEOPLE: A CULTURAL WRITING EXPERIENCE (STUDENT MANUAL)

This set of materials for a cultural writing curriculum for adult basic education students (5-8 grade level) was developed in Pennsylvania. It consists of a teacher's guide and student manual (videotape and an audiocassette complete the set). The materials are intended to develop the adult learners' writing and reading competencies through their active involvement with the cultural heritage of their community, accomplished by conducting interviews with community members. The 11 lessons, or steps, are designated by the letters A through K and arranged so that each step builds upon knowledge attained through completing the preceding steps. The teacher's guide provides a supplemental reading list and the following materials for each lesson: lesson objectives, lesson overview, and suggested teaching ideas. The student manual provides informational materials and exercises that teach the students basic skills of Interviewing (Step A: Getting Started, Step B: Listening, Step C: Notetaking, and Step D: Taping) and of writing an organized, edited account of the interview (Step E: Transcribing, Step F: Organizing, Step G: Editing for Spelling, Step H: Editing for Vocabulary, and Step I: Editing for Usage).

PUBLISHING AN ANTHOLOGY OF ADULT STUDENT WRITING: A PARTNERSHIP FOR LITERACY

The main objectives of this Pennsylvania project were to conduct a writing contest for adult basic education/high school equivalency/English as a Second Language (ABE/GED/ESL) and basic literacy students and to publish an anthology of selected prose (fiction and non-fiction) and poetry entries by those students. Secondary objectives were to promote a greater public awareness of ABE/basic literacy programs and to encourage cross-membership and involvement of adult and K-college English teachers. This report is a step-by-step description of the anthology project. Extensive appendices to the report contain the following items: rules and guidelines, evaluative criteria for judging student writing, cover letter, student consent form, anthology postscript, anthology preface, annotated bibliography, model of the writing project, a list of participating programs and staff members, and samples of public relations material generated or received by the project.

Odessa College, in Odessa, Texas, used computers, videos, audio, print media, seminars, and workshops to provide enriched curriculum concerning workplace competencies to JOBS clients. Participants were also furnished information concerning jobs. Project participants used computers and videos to study workplace math, English, reading, social skills, reasoning skills, values, employability skills and vocational training requirements. They were encouraged to use these tools to explore their aptitudes, interests and learning styles as they worked on their academic skills. The project developed a manual for adult educators that contains a description of the technology model and its implementation. The manual includes specifics on how to replicate the program.

DEVELOPMENT OF AN IN-PLANT MICROCOMPUTER LITERACY LAB

The Northwest Tri-County Unit in Edinboro, Pennsylvania developed this curriculum to supply ABE and GED students with software and instruction in word processing, spreadsheets, and databases. Microsoft Work provides the basis of the programming since it encompasses all three of the desired components and interfaces well with the IBM microcomputer. Products resulting from this project include lesson plans for teachers wishing to use word processing, spreadsheets, and databases to instruct reading, writing, or math basic skills. This project directly benefits both adult students and their instructors by providing a simplified outline for both of them to follow while acquiring the Microsoft Program techniques.

LASER DISC TECHNOLOGY: A VISUAL APPROACH TO READING

Through this project, developed in Lewistown, Pennsylvania, a curriculum was developed which uses laser disc software in reading classes to enhance the study of social studies, science, literature and the arts. The laser disc materials, as used in the reading exercises, provided learners with an enhanced educational experience. The project report includes appendices containing a pre/post laser disc questionnaire, a biology unit, two earth science units, a geography unit, a chemistry/physics unit, a political science unit, and a bibliography.

LEARNING WITH COMPUTERS: IMPLEMENTATION OF AN INTEGRATED LEARNING SYSTEM FOR COMPUTER ASSISTED INSTRUCTION (CAI)

The Windham School System in Huntsville, Texas, developed and installed an integrated learning system in three prison adult education programs. From this experience, the project staff wrote a manual for other adult education programs that are considering using such a stand alone computer system. The manual contains a variety of educational, technical, and practical factors that should be considered in deciding if an integrated learning system would be beneficial.

REGIONAL LITERACY RESOURCE CENTER SOFTWARE BUYER'S GUIDE: 1993 EDITION

This guide assesses software that was used in most cases by adult learners at the local program level for at least six weeks in Oregon and Washington. Software initially rated from good to excellent was further verified by an advisory team composed of practitioners selected by their State ABE Directors for their expertise in technology and in basic skill instruction. The guide contains a list of evaluated software that indicates the curriculum area of the software, the rating it received, its intended instructional level, and its cost. There is also a matrix of featured software and a resource guide that includes a glossary of terms, a section on the most often asked questions about hardware, a list of publishers, and an annotated reference to periodicals that discuss technology and its applications to adult basic skills.

A TRAINING MANUAL FOR THE IMPLEMENTATION OF COMPUTER-ASSISTED ADULT LITERACY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

This manual was developed by The Temple University Center for Research in Human Development and Education to assist literacy providers in implementing individually tailored literacy programs for adults. The program is designed with an adaptive instructional approach which uses classroom instruction, small groups, individual tutoring and computer assisted instruction. The major focus is to train literacy providers in integrating a computer assisted instruction component into the adult literacy program.

Discussed in the manual are topics such as: Awareness workshops, planning for implementation and technical assistance, delivery of literacy training, assessment of program implementation, and documentation/evaluation of training.

WE COUNT: AN INTEGRATED MATH AND SOCIAL STUDIES COMMUNITY-BASED PROGRAM

This project was developed at the Monroe County Schools in Union, West Virginia. A curriculum guide was produced that contains learning activities which: 1) introduce students to Lotus 1-2-3 and the KIDS COUNT computer math curriculum, 2) increase understanding of math skills, and 3) increase knowledge of the GED social studies component by working with charts and graphs. The intent of the project was to teach spreadsheet, math, graph and charting skills within the context of social studies and community issues. Lotus 1-2-3 allows low-level math students to use higher order thinking skills to analyze information. This guide is a step-by-step approach which leads the teacher and adult learners through a variety of activities geared to different learning styles. Both individual and group activities are included.

EMPLOYABILITY: CAREER DEVELOPMENT FOR UNDEREDUCATED ADULTS IN ABE PROGRAMS

The Career Development for Undereducated Adults materials were prepared by the Portland Community College in collaboration with the Northwest Regional Educational Laboratory. The materials are designed to help adult basic education teachers build and assess student career development, occupational needs, and to link assessment to instruction. Higher level material is included in some cases when it is especially valuable as a resource. The materials are based on the Comprehensive Adult Student Assessment system (CASAS) list of occupational knowledge competencies. Several noteworthy recommendations are included: ABE programs should be encouraged to fund more staff development activities that involve working with and integrating instructional materials into the curriculum, more instructional materials should be targeted to specific populations such as corrections, dislocated workers, new job clients, and materials should reflect current topics and situations appropriate for adults.

()GENERIC WORK SKILLS CURRICULUM DEVELOPMENT

This project was developed at the Adult and Community Education Granite School District in Salt Lake City, Utah. The purpose of the project was to move adult learning as far as possible into the real world, and to provide opportunities for adults to engage in personal meaning, making personal growth the main objective of their learning. To also deviate from the traditional adult education curriculum that is designed for adults who have failed to succeed when they were in regular school. This project also established curriculum that could serve the needs of adults from school to work transition. It incorporated several independent study packets that would help adults succeed in the world of work, explore their career interests, and learn and practice problem solving and communication skills that are valuable in the real world. Successful completion of the study packets will satisfy State requirements in the vocational/technical/job entry category, and in the elective category.

This publication includes the major points presented at the Workplace Literacy Conference held in conjunction with the Florida Literacy Conference in March, 1991, in Jacksonville. The conference centered on a proposed model partnership agreement between business industry, and local adult education providers. Included in this publication are topics on: Why and How to Develop Literacy Programs in the Workplace, Selling the Concept/Identifying Partners, Designing Partnership Agreements, Literacy Task Analysis, Curriculum Development/Adaptation Based on Literacy Task Analysis, and Do's and Don'ts for Programs. In addition, there are samples of brochures; flyers; advertisements; and print media promotions; assessment instruments and educational services agreements; and forms for workplace literacy programs. Trends for workplace literacy programs are included in the annotated bibliography of workplace literacy publications.

READING, WRITING AND CRITICAL THINKING FOR SECOND-LEVEL EMPLOYEES IN SMALL AND MID-SIZED BUSINESSES

This project was conducted by the Adult Literacy Center of Lehigh Valley in Allentown, Pennsylvania. It identified essential vocabulary, reading comprehension, math, writing and critical thinking skills for 29 second-level jobs in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in selected occupations. Literacy audits and task analyses were performed and instructional modules produced for the fields of light/industrial machine operation, health care, food preparation, hotel/hospitality, and housekeeping/maintenance. The report provides skills and vocabulary specific to each occupational area, tasks common to several areas, sample instructional techniques, and sample activities applied to work-related materials. The report is to be used as a resource guide for projects wishing to develop a cooperative training program in response to the needs of small and mid-sized businesses.

SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE IN LIFELONG LEARNING

This project describes the implementation and operation of a workplace training partnership between Vance-Granville Community College and an area roofing manufacturer, the CertainTeed Corporation in Oxford, North Carolina. The workplace program, including literacy requirements and curriculum plans, was designed in coordination with a Focused Industry Training program being established at the partner company. The final report provides suggestions for maintaining a successful program, as well as sample materials for program development, curriculum development, job task analysis, marketing/promotion, and evaluation.

TNT (TEAMS NEED TRAINING): A MANUAL FOR WORKPLACE EDUCATORS

This manual was developed in Lock Haven, Pennsylvania, to assist adult educators in teaching team work skills in workforce literacy programs. The manual uses a variety of approaches to teach students how to be members of self-directed teams. Team work skills covered in the curriculum include conflict resolution, problem solving, leadership, motivation, self-esteem, communication, decision making, and interpersonal relations.

TOOLS OF THE TRADE

The Mifflin County Community Project in Pennsylvania was undertaken to offer comprehensive job search assistance to adult basic education students in the form of career awareness workshops. The workshops covered the following topics: completing job applications, writing resumes, filling out skill cards, interviewing for a job, analyzing the job market, following up on job leads, networking, and making direct contact with employers. The project's report contains many of the materials used during the workshops, including materials dealing with employer expectations, job objectives, skills identification, paper skills (pocket resumes, applications, skill cards, letter-writing guidelines, and resumes), phone contacts, interviewing, and follow up. A 90-item bibliography concludes the document.

TOOLS OF THE TRADE: VOLUNTEERS IN WORKPLACE LITERACY

This manual was developed in Cleveland, Tennessee by the Opportunity for Adult Reading, Inc. It was designed to assist in the training of volunteer instructors in workplace literacy programs. The beginning chapters explore the role volunteers play in workplace literacy and address concerns employers may have about using volunteers in their programs. A training module is included in the manual, complete with lessons, suggestions, handouts, and forms for developing a volunteer training workshop.

() 1995-1996 additions to the Guide

() 1996-97-98 additions to the Guide

This handbook was developed by the South Carolina Office of Adult Education; Florence School Districts 2, 3, 4, and 5. It is designed for adult educators to use in establishing a successful workplace skills enhancement program at business and industry program sites.

The handbook describes how to plan, design, implement, maintain, and evaluate successful programs. Several fact sheets are included in the appendix on writing brochures and support letters, building the curriculum, and determining student cost per class. In addition, cooperative agreements, literacy audit, recruitment techniques, and program evaluation are addressed.

WINNING THE RACE AGAINST TECHNOLOGY: IMPLEMENTING LITERACY PROGRAMS IN THE WORKPLACE

This manual describes how a partnership between Comal, Guadalupe, and Kendall counties adult education co-ops and Motorola, Inc. in Seguin, Texas was planned and implemented. Topics in the manual include: Getting Started, Selling Your Organization, and Designing a Program Specific to the Needs of the Company. In addition, recruiting and assessing participants are discussed. Sample participant and instructor evaluation forms are provided. Challenges such as determining assessment instruments and making class schedules are discussed.

WORKER-CENTERED LEARNING: A CURRICULUM TO DEVELOP UNION MEMBERS' BASIC AND HIGHER ORDER SKILLS

This curriculum is designed to improve the basic skills of adults enrolled in an union-based, pre-allied health adult basic education program. Section 1 contains information about learner-centered teaching methods illustrated with union materials. Section 2 includes ideas for opening sessions, language arts and mathematics activities that accompany union-produced and job-related materials, and ideas for culminating projects. Section 3 contains a resource list, response sheets to record reactions and responses to the activities, and a list of terminology found in the union materials.

WORKFORCE BASICS

This project, developed in Pennsylvania was designed to address workers' needs and upgrade their skills to compete in today's workforce. The curriculum is comprised of student workbooks and accompanying two-part instructor's manuals on the topics of critical reading, effective writing, oral communication, problem solving, study skills, work-related math, and word processing. The student workbooks contain instructional materials on the topics. The instructor's manuals contain an introduction, lesson plans for providing at least ten hours of instruction and copies of the student materials. The instructor's manuals also describe a process for applying the instruction to job-specific tasks.

WORKFORCE GADSDEN: BRIDGING THE GAP

The Workforce Gadsden project established a partnership between the Gadsden County Florida School System's Adult and Community Education Program and the County Chamber of Commerce. Its goal was to provide workplace literacy training to small and medium-sized businesses and governmental departments. The final report provides examples of products (including business and industry needs analysis surveys, a marketing/informational pamphlet, lists of materials sent to area businesses, advisory council minutes, publicity, etc.) used to promote community awareness of the need for work-related basic skills training. The report also discusses the practices (key partnership and program components such as staff development and support services, an evaluation of project objectives and outcomes, etc.) used to provide technical assistance and training to address these needs.

WORKFORCE LITERACY FOR HOTEL/MOTEL WORKERS

Polk County School District staff in Florida developed this project to help Adult Basic Education (ABE) and English for Speakers of Other Language (ESOL) students with their job-related and language skills. A learning unit is provided for three occupational areas: housekeepers, groundkeepers, and food service workers. Tasks are related to general and job related information, effective oral communication, and following written directions. A training manual was also developed which includes sections on: exploration, negotiation, implementation, and appendices.

WORKPLACE LITERACY: MODEL COOPERATIVE INDUSTRIAL LITERACY PROJECT HANDBOOK AND EVALUATION REPORT

This handbook, developed by Caldwell Community College in North Carolina describes the steps used in developing a workplace literacy program between Broyhill Furniture Industries, and the Caldwell Community College and Technical Institute. Program design, preparation, implementation, evaluation, and guidelines for replication are some of the topics listed in the handbook. In addition, the handbook is accompanied by a project evaluation report which includes such topics as: evaluation of student progress, student gains, and the program implementation model. Specific objectives, procedures, findings, and recommendations are also examined in the evaluation report.

WORKPLACE LITERACY: A RESOURCE GUIDE

This publication was compiled at Florida Atlantic University to provide guidelines, models, and appropriate resource materials to adult education agencies and employers who desire to plan or implement a workplace literacy program.

A summary of results from Florida Workplace Literacy Programs, and a discussion on how to develop a workplace literacy program is included. In addition, an annotated Bibliography of Resources is provided that is organized into four categories: trends, model programs, resources, and teaching strategies. The appendices include a workplace literacy fact sheet and a workplace literacy survey instrument.

WORKPLACE LITERACY: WORKPLACE TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE PROGRAM (WORKTAP)
HANDBOOK

This project was developed at the Institute for the Study of Adult Literacy at Pennsylvania State University. It is a technical assistance service program designed to train adult education providers, literacy service providers, and business and industry organizations to develop and implement workplace literacy programs. Initiating and establishing workplace literacy needs, developing job specific basic skills instruction, and implementing effective workplace literacy programs are some of the topics discussed in this handbook.
